Strategy Overview

- O Created by Goldman Sachs & Co. (the "Index Sponsor"), the Goldman Sachs Aging of America Dynamic Balance Index ("the Index"), dynamically allocates to equities, as represented by the Solactive Aging of America TR Index (the "Underlying Equity Index") and U.S. Fixed Income, as represented by a 10-Year U.S. Treasury Rolling Futures Index (the "Underlying Fixed Income Index"), in addition to a hypothetical cash investment (the "Money Market Position").
 - o The Solactive Aging of America TR Index (Bloomberg Ticker: SOLAOA Index) seeks to provide targeted exposure to companies in the healthcare and real estate sectors that may benefit from the long-term demographic shift towards an older population in the United States. Additional information on the Solactive Aging of America TR Index can be found at https://www.solactive.com/indices/?se=1&index=DE000SL0A063.
 - o 10-Year U.S. Treasury Rolling Futures Index (Bloomberg Ticker: FRSIUSB Index) is a fixed income benchmark.
 - The Money Market Position reflects the returns accruing on a hypothetical cash investment in a notional money market account denominated in U.S. dollars that accrues interest at the notional interest rate, which is equal to the Federal Funds rate.
- o A Volatility Target of 5% is applied to the Underlying Equity Index and the Underlying Fixed Income Index in order to target an equal risk allocation between these two components. Any residual value (such that weights sum to 100%) will be allocated to the Money Market Position and any cost of leverage charged at the rate of the Money Market Position. This is called the Base Index.
- o The daily target weights for the Underlying Equity Index and Underlying Fixed Income Index is based on the average of their respective daily historical volatilities across the pre-determined look back periods including; 3-months, 6-months and 9-months.
- o A daily momentum signal is also applied to only the Underlying Fixed Income Index. The signal is based on daily historical returns across the pre-determined look back periods; 3-months, 6-months and 9-months, with the aim of reducing the allocation to the Underlying Fixed Income Index if the momentum signal is not positive.
- This allocation framework will generally result in higher weighting to components exhibiting lower historical volatility and lower weighting to components exhibiting higher historical volatility. The sum of the weights of the two Underlying Indices in the Base Index will be less than or equal to a maximum weight of 150%, subject to rounding conventions. The Base Index is rebalanced on a daily basis.
- o The final daily weight of each constituent in the Base Index is the average of the target weights over the previous 22-day period.
- The Index has a Volatility Cap of 5.00% and is measured on a daily basis. To the extent the Volatility Cap is exceeded, as measured by the 1-month historical volatility of the Base Index, (using the constituents weights on the given day), a pro-rata portion of the Base Index is allocated to the deleverage position (Money Market Position).
- o The Index is calculated on an excess return basis over the sum of (i) a notional cash deposit at Fed Funds, compounded daily and (ii) an index cost of 0.75% per annum (accruing daily).

¹⁰ Hypothetical and actual index returns are not indicative of future results. The Index is not actively managed. Hypothetical data reflects application of index methodology and selection of index components with the benefit of hindsight. No hypothetical can completely account for the impact of financial risk in actual trading. Many factors not accounted for can affect actual performance. Component indexes are sponsored by Goldman Sachs or Motif, unless labeled otherwise. The index has a 0.75% embedded yearly expense that reflects costs associated with replicating the index. The hypothetical index returns already reflect this expense. Source: Goldman Sachs Securities Division.
