

MARKET CONSULTATION TREATMENT OF EQUITY INDICES IN RESPONSE TO RECENT SANCTIONS TARGETING RUSSIA

02 March 2022

Content of the Market Consultation

Solactive AG continues to monitor the recently announced sanctions targeting Russia, and their impact on the operation of the Russian equity market. We note that these sanctions are having a significant impact on the ability of investors to trade in these equity instruments and the market in general, and the replicability of Solactive administered indices which contain Russian equity securities.

In light of these developments, we invite stakeholders to provide feedback on the following proposals by 11:59 pm (CET) on Thursday 3 March 2022.

Ineligibility of Russian equity market

In accordance with the Solactive Country Classification Framework (<https://www.solactive.com/documents/solactive-country-classification-framework/>), we are of the view that the current market conditions of the Russian equity market constitute an extraordinary event which leads to a potential reclassification in between the regular review periods. We observe significantly reduced access to the Russian market, limitations on market size and liquidity and highly restricted accessibility to investors.

As a result, we propose to classify Russia as no longer meeting the requirements for Emerging Market Countries in accordance with the Solactive Country Classification Framework and remove it from the respective list. A consequence of this reclassification would be that Russian equity securities will no longer be eligible for inclusion in Solactive administered indices. This would apply not only to Russian equity securities, but also to ADRs, GDRs or similar related instruments.

For those Solactive administered indices which explicitly refer to Russian equity eligibility in the Index Guidelines, these will be considered in the same manner as above, and this index specific eligibility will be removed.

We invite stakeholders to provide feedback on this proposal, and in particular, please provide specific answers to the following questions:

- Do you agree with the proposal to reclassify Russia and remove it from the Solactive list of Emerging Market Countries with the consequence that Russian equity securities will no longer be eligible for inclusion in Solactive administered indices?
- Do you agree that this should also apply to GDRs and ADRs and other related instruments?

Immediate removal of Russian equity securities which are existing components of Solactive administered indices

As a result of the observed impact of the sanctions on the Russian equity markets and the limitations on accessibility and tradability for investors, we would also act to remove any Russian equity securities as soon as possible (with a minimum 2 day notice period) from any Solactive administered indices. The affected indices would not be rebalanced, but the Russian securities would be removed at a zero price if the equity security is not trading, or at the last available trading price if the security is tradeable

We invite stakeholder to provide feedback on this proposal, and in particular, please provide specific answers to the following questions:

- Do you agree with this proposal to remove Russian equity securities as soon as possible from Solactive Administered indices ? If not, what would be the benefit to keep the equities in the respective index universe?
- Do you also agree to remove at zero price if the equity is not trading, and at last available traded price if trading is possible ? If not, what would be the preferred method to remove the equities from the index and why would that be preferred against the proposed method?
- Is there any other approach or method that you would prefer to see in response to this current situation ?
